FOR INTACT TEAMS

The Mixed-Audience Deck Structure

A presentation architecture for rooms that contain all three orientations. Each wiring hears what it needs to say yes, in the order that keeps everyone in the room.

THE DRAIN

Presenters build decks in their own orientation's image, and mixed rooms punish it: the vision deck loses the HOW-primaries by slide four, the detail deck loses the WHATs by slide two, and the objections that surface afterward are really unanswered orientation questions wearing content costumes.

WHAT THIS TOOL DOES

The structure sequences one deck through all three energies: a purpose-led open that earns the WHYs, an action-and-milestone middle that carries the WHATs, an explicit ask, and a genuine precision appendix that tells the HOWs their questions have real answers waiting. Every wiring gets its yes-condition addressed on purpose.

HOW TO USE IT

- 1 Announce the appendix on slide two. "Full mechanics are in the appendix and I'll go as deep as you want" visibly relaxes the precision wiring in the room.
- 2 Keep the open to two slides. Purpose earns attention; it cannot hold it. The WHATs are already waiting.
- 3 Read the room's map if you have it. A HOW-heavy room inverts the ratio: thinner open, appendix promoted. The structure flexes on composition.
- 4 Rehearse the ask sentence. Decks with soft asks produce meetings with soft outcomes. One sentence, memorized.

The structure

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1 The open, two slides | Why this matters and what it changes. The WHY energy in the room decides here whether to lean in. |
| 2 The middle | What happens, in what sequence, with which milestones and owners. The WHAT spine of the deck. |
| 3 The ask, one slide | The specific decision requested, stated plainly. Never leave it implied. |
| 4 The appendix, as deep as needed | The mechanics, data, and edge cases, complete and findable. Its existence, mentioned early, is what lets HOW-primaries say yes without them. |

WHAT IT WON'T DO

Structure cannot rescue an empty case; the deck still needs a real purpose, a real plan, and real numbers, the architecture just guarantees each reaches the wiring that needs it. And for single-orientation audiences, skip the balance and build to the room, that is what the ratios are for.
