SUPPORTS TERTIARY WHAT

FOR WHY-HOW · HOW-WHY

The Momentum Board

A dead-simple visible tracker of movement, three columns, updated weekly. It externalizes the progress sense your wiring doesn't generate internally.

THE DRAIN

WHAT—primaries feel progress viscerally; WHY-HOW and HOW-WHY profiles do not, and the absence cuts twice. Real movement goes unfelt and unreported, and stalls go unnoticed until someone else points at them. Both cost credibility that the quality of the work should have earned.

WHAT THIS TOOL DOES

The board is an external progress organ. Three columns, updated in ten minutes each week, on whatever tool the team already uses, a whiteboard, a doc, a channel post. It makes movement visible to you first and to everyone else second, and it makes stalls impossible to miss at week two.

The three columns

- | | | |
|----------|------------------------|--|
| 1 | Moved this week | What demonstrably advanced. Demonstrable is the bar, not effortful. |
| 2 | Moving now | The active threads, capped by your WIP limit, each with its next step. |
| 3 | Blocked | What is stuck, on what, and who owns the unblocking. Named, always. |

HOW TO USE IT

- 1 Update it at a fixed time. Friday close or Monday open. The rhythm is the tool; ad hoc boards die.
- 2 Write for a reader, not a diary. Entries a colleague could understand cold. That discipline is the reporting.
- 3 Act on anything two weeks in Blocked. The board's real alarm. Two weeks stuck means escalate, trade, or retire.
- 4 Keep it public. A private board tracks; a public one builds the reputation your work deserves.

WHAT IT WON'T DO

The board is a method riding on tools you already have; it is deliberately not another piece of software to maintain. It shows movement, it does not create it, pair it with the Closing Card and WIP Limit, which do.
