UNIVERSAL

FOR ALL SIX PROFILES

The Team Trade Board

A team ritual for openly trading work out of tertiaries and into primaries. Under the energy model, a trade is not a favor exchange, it is a net energy gain on both sides.

THE DRAIN

On most teams, everyone quietly carries their own tertiary load, because handing off draining work feels like an admission, or an imposition on others. The framework says the opposite: the task draining one person is often the task that energizes another, and the silence is leaving that gain unclaimed.

WHAT THIS TOOL DOES

The board makes the exchange explicit and mutual. Each person posts a recurring drain and something they would gladly take in exchange; profiles make the matches predictable, WHY-WHAT detail work finds HOW-primary takers, HOW-WHY momentum work finds WHAT-primary takers. Matched trades get contracted in writing and reviewed monthly.

How a trade works

- | | | |
|----------|--------------------------|--|
| 1 | Post the drain | One recurring task, honestly named, with its real weekly cost. |
| 2 | Post the offer | What you would happily absorb in return, from your primary. |
| 3 | Match by profile | The team map predicts the pairings. Drains meet primaries. |
| 4 | Contract the swap | One page: scope, standards, duration. Ambiguous trades curdle. |
| 5 | Review monthly | Balanced? Working? Continue, adjust, or unwind, out loud. |

HOW TO USE IT

- 1 Launch it with profiles on the table. The board works because the energy logic is shared. Run it after a team MindPrint™ session, not cold.
- 2 Leaders post first. A leader trading away a drain licenses everyone else's honesty.
- 3 Keep trades roughly equivalent. Not identical, equivalent in load. Lopsided trades become resentments with paperwork.
- 4 Celebrate the completed swap. The first successful trade converts skeptics faster than any explanation of the model.

WHAT IT WON'T DO

Not every drain has a taker, and the board must not become a pressure mechanism, an unmatched post simply routes back to the Triage Tree's other paths. Trades also move energy, not accountability: the original owner still answers for the outcome unless the role itself formally changes.
